Despair vs Respair

Considering Climate Change

Despair/Respair

From Middle English and Latin respīrō

re- (“back”) + spīrō (“to breathe, blow”).

Noun: Respair

‘The return of hope after a period of despair.’

Verb: Respair

‘To have hope again.’

Although both forms are rare and obsolete, they seem ripe for reviving. Andy Atkins

Considering Climate Change

'Respairing is the act of bringing new life into dark places, lamenting the lost and yet also rejoicing in the art of the possible. These are very much the worst of times, but they also bring out the best in people. Let's rise to the moment, take action and lean into God as we do so.'

Andy Atkins is Head of Conservation at A Rocha UK.
